

EXOGEAR's® new exoclear™ edge case is music to the ears for iPhone 4 fans

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Atlanta, Georgia (March 22, 2011) Audiophiles have quickly learned that the iPhone 4 is much more than a phone. For many, it's a pocket-sized personal jukebox, a pint-sized boombox, and even a web-enabled voice recorder. But while most aftermarket cases leave audio on the wayside in favor of protection, EXOGEAR's® new exoclear™ edge turns that notion on its ear.

EXOGEAR's® new exoclear™ edge case offers solid, one-size-fits-all protection for both the Verizon and at&t iPhone 4, while also directing the speaker and microphone ports towards the user.

"Audio playback and recording are important parts of the iPhone 4 experience, and we wanted to highlight that with the exoclear™ edge," says EXOGEAR® President, Justin Lim. Just like EXOGEAR's® iPhone 4 battery case, the exoclear™ edge offers a unique design that's great for traditional protection too. A sleek metal buckle lets users unhinge the wrap-around case for quick and easy removal, and the power and volume button covers allow seamless response without unwanted scratches or scuffing.

Headphone aficionados can benefit from the exoclear™ edge as well, thanks to an over-sized port designed specifically for prosumer headphones like Monster's beats by dr. dre.™ exoclear's snug-fitting setup is truly plug and play--whether you're patching in bulky 'auxiliary out' cables or popping in studio quality cans, no case removal is necessary.

Best of all, the exoclear™ edge falls under EXOGEAR's® comprehensive Lifetime Guarantee, which covers replacement in the event of unfortunate accidents, innocent mishaps, or even the all-encompassing "just because." All it takes is covering the return shipping and handling fees and EXOGEAR® takes care of the rest.

The exoclear™ edge for iPhone 4 retails for $24.95 and currently comes in two colors (clear and dark gray) with a full spectrum of options due soon. For orders, full specifications and additional information, visit www.exogear.com or www.amazon.com.
